THE SAGE TRAIN PHILOSOPHY COMES TO LIFE

Nicky Hansell

Friedrich Nietzsche is dead. Not only that, but he's lost and alone, climbing a mountain with no one to talk to. So when he spies someone coming towards him he's delighted. G. K. Chesterton is no moral hero, but he does have a knapsack of food. And a book that wants to be read. It's not long before this book brings to life the Sages they see in the distance.

In this breathtaking novel, we meet some of the philosophers who have shaped the way we think; their private lives and public ideas.

A blend of philosophy, history, biography and fiction, the reader is introduced to the men behind the theories. A man like Immanuel Kant is a different creature to John Stuart Mill. Events in their own lives would be handled quite differently and in keeping with the theories they are known for today. The Sage Train is a powerful new tool to engage with philosophical ideas from Aristotle to Spinoza and explore what still motivates our actions.

'This book has a light, accessible tone that makes abstract ideas seem easy. Illuminates with grace and wit the lives of these giants of thought' Joe Jenkins, *Contemporary Moral Issues

'Provides a new pathway into philosophy and consideration of the most important issues any human being can address' Peter and Charlotte Vardy, *Ethics Matters and God Matters

NICKY HANSELL read English and Theology at Trinity College, Cambridge. She taught Philosophy and Ethics for eleven years in a large comprehensive school in Yorkshire and now writes and co-directs films that are regarded as an essential resource by students and undergraduates. She is an author, broadcaster and film maker.
