

New Communications Ethics Title Revisioning Diversity In Communication Studies

By Amardo Rodriguez

Communication is fundamentally a relational phenomenon. Through communication we create relationships that frame how we perceive and relate to the world and each other. Every relationship sets off different social, political, and epistemological implications and consequences, and possesses the potential to fundamentally change the world. This book presents an emergent definition of communication and demonstrates the promise of this definition for enlarging our understanding and experience of what is possible.

Communication is defined in terms of vulnerability. Vulnerability assumes that our humanity is bound up with the humanity of others. This book is about possibility and our own potentiality to create just and humane worlds, and it demonstrates how a new vision of communication studies, by expanding our moral and theoretical imagination, can allow us to look anew at our own potentiality and that of the world.

About the Author: Amardo Rodriguez is a Laura J. and L. Douglas Meredith Professor in the Communication and Rhetorical Studies Department at Syracuse University. His research and teaching interests investigate the potentiality of new conceptions of communication to redefine contemporary understandings of democracy and community

Revisioning Diversity in Communication Studies

Published 3rd September 2010

ISBN 9781848761773

Price £24.95

If you would like a review copy of the book, or would like to arrange an interview with the author, please contact Caroline Bromley at Troubador Publishing, by email at caroline\_bromley@troubador.co.uk or by phone on 0116 279 2299.

