A doggy's tale told in the emails of Lady Corrie-Rex Arabella Jayne

P.K. Bell

The Lady Corrie Jayne is not just a Westie, she is a Westie with a heritage as long as her back paw and a talent for computer hacking! Corrie did not have the best start to life, after being sold to a family that didn't really understand the ways of dogs, but fortunately Granpappy has written down some good advice for her in The Puppy Dog's Handbook (PDH), which she keeps in her back pocket.

E is for Escape and Corrie leaves her first family behind to head North and find Granpappy. Things do not go to plan however, and she soon finds herself on the cold streets of London, far from home and without her pedigree details. Who will believe her proud heritage now?

On her travels, she is taken in at the Poor Doggy Rescue Centre and then chosen as the new family pet for the Kent family. Corrie is delighted – the family have a Dogatron Computer, just like the one she has seen in a shop. Personal Computer (PC) is listed in Granpappy's book, so she sets to work and emails her Electro Engineer Daddy onboard his ship. She enlists his help to find Granpappy and tells him about the wicked Dog Rustlers of McNabbit, and her plans to save her new family from harm...

About the Author: P. K. Bell was born in Northamptonshire but spends most of her time in Scotland. She is married and has a daughter. Letters to Daddy is her debut children's novel. When she is not writing, she can usually be found chasing her own naughty Westie through the heather of the Northern Highlands.
